

What is the NAMI Provider Education Program?

NAMI Provider Education is a five-session staff development program for healthcare personnel who work directly with people affected by mental illness. This unique program is led by people living in recovery and by family members who share their personal, intimate perspective on their treatment experience. The material is also available in a 4-hour introductory seminar.

The course helps providers understand the challenges that families and individuals face and appreciate the courage and persistence it takes to live with mental illness.

Participant Perspectives

“The sessions are powerful. They teach us and move us to tears. We become humble as they challenge us to reexamine our constructs of psychiatric illness and treatment. We walk in their shoes.”

“The program has given us essential insight to view individuals with mental illness and their families as partners in the treatment process.”
